CONTEMPORARY CREATION & ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT

The department of Creuse initiated the Cité internationale de la tapisserie project with a significant support from the State. This project is inscribed in a process of valorisation of the craftsmanship of excellence in weaving and thread in general. The implementation of a Regional Fund for the creation of contemporary tapestries in 2010 interested until the present day almost 1,200 creators. It led to the production of astonishing pieces that are often requested for loans: they participate in writing a new page of the Aubusson tapestry history.

The platform for contemporary creation within the Cité de la tapisserie strengthens the gathering of this craftsmanship recognized as Intangible Cultural Heritage of Humanity and creators of all kinds. The Cité de la tapisserie initiates projects with private partners, such as the one developed with the Ymer & Malta gallery, in order to help the professionals to get a true perception of clients expectations and markets.

The Cité also implemented a national degree for weaving (National Arts and Crafts Degree « Arts and techniques of carpet and tapestry weaving ») that will be a part of a larger competence cluster including natural dying and textile restoration. In connection with the Regional Council, the Chamber of Commerce and Industry, the Community of Cities Creuse Grand Sud, the business incubator 2Cube and the association Lainamac, the Cité works to increase the excellency business network around the wool production, the industries of carpets and tapestries, high-warp tapestries, tufted rugs, digital weavings and jacquard carpets.

In this context, an outreach manager develops business relations with the United Arab Emirates, in cooperation with Aubusson manufacturers. The Cité also takes part in the prospection and installation of innovative businesses in Aubusson, in the field of woven art and the valorisation of the heritage within the « Aubusson world ».

A RENEWED SCIENTIFIC AND CULTURAL PROJECT

The Cité internationale de la tapisserie opened in the former National School of Decorative Art, which has been entirely rehabilitated. This was a strong symbol: the valorisation of Aubusson tapestry is assigned to the last building to house the National School of Decorative Art in Aubusson, one of the first three Schools of this kind, created at the same time as Paris and Limoges in 1884.

With a new museum comes a completely redesigned scientific and cultural project. The inscription of Aubusson tapestry on UNESCO’s Representative List of the Intangible Cultural Heritage of Humanity was a trigger to put the human back in the centre of the project.

The craftsmanship and its learning are in the heart of the new permanent exhibition itinerary, along with the question of the interpretation of the artist’s project by the craftsman (the weaver), as a guiding thread during the visit.

It was also necessary to take into account the openness of the institution. The Cité internationale de la tapisserie is not only a museum. It is also a place for professional training, creation, and a resources centre.

The museum is the base and all other functions feed on each other. Following this principle, complementarity between spaces guided the rehabilitation of the building of the former Art School the Cité de la tapisserie settled in.

Meanwhile, considerable efforts have been made to upgrade the collection: checking and updating collection inventories (inventory database), definition of a reasoned enrichment plan to establish a reference collection for Aubusson tapestry and offer a complete panorama of the productions in Aubusson from the 15th century to the present day.

GENESIS
Beyond the myth, the first certain mention of tapestry workers settled in Aubusson’s surroundings, in the nearby town of Felletin, dates back to 1457. Even back then, Aubusson tapestry is closed to the aesthetic and artistic evolutions of its time and follows the fashion of the Millefleurs, asserting its identity with a rustic and precise weaving.

The 16th century is marked by the greeneries « with cabbage leaves », wild and monumental landscapes populated by real or fantasy animals. The verdure hangings, which styles evolve with fashion, create great interior landscapes, and impose themselves as a great force of Aubusson production.

17TH CENTURY, THE ROYAL MANUFACTURE
In the 17th century sentimental novels met with great public success. The cartoonists of the region assist this popularity by offering series of tapestries drawn from the illustrated editions of these works.

The quality of Aubusson production is recognised and regulated by the Royal Administration, and the workshops of Aubusson are granted the title of Royal Manufacture of Tapestries in 1665. Contrary to what this title might suggest, the production is not gathered in a unique manufactory but it is spread in a multitude of independant workshops... a specificity that continues nowadays!

18TH CENTURY, FINE TAPESTRIES FOR INTERNATIONAL MARKET
After a troubled period due to the revocation of the Edict of Nantes, the Royal Manufacture is deeply reformed. With King’s painter Jean-Joseph Dumons, Aubusson tapestry adopts a lighter style, fashionable in Paris. This fine and colored style, very decorative, meets a great success and offers a new stimulation to Aubusson tapestry.
19TH CENTURY, GREAT MANUFACTORIES

Great manufactories, ruled by tycoons and gathering all the crafts and jobs associated with tapestry, present their best creations at important decorative arts exhibitions.

Rugs and upholstering ensure the profitability of these manufactories. Meanwhile, tapestry follows the numerous artistic movements of the century, turning more and more into an imitation of painting.

THE NATIONAL SCHOOL OF DECORATIVE ARTS AND THE REVIVAL OF AUBUSSON TAPESTRY

In 1884, the National School of Decorative Arts is created in Aubusson. From 1917, director Antoine Marius Martin initiates a true revival of Aubusson tapestry. Adopting the modernity of post-impressionist artists and rejecting the imitation of painting, he defines a new aesthetic, inspired by medieval tapestries, using a reduced chromatic scale, bigger threads and a more visible weaving technique.

Jean Lurçat, an already well-known painter emerging from the surrealistic movement, gives an impulse to the workshops' activity, carrying along a whole generation of painters inspired by his works.

GREAT ARTISTS IN AUBUSSON

This revival of Aubusson tapestry, built on strong new technique and aesthetics, attracts the greatest artists of the 20th century.

Marie Cuttoli, editor and avant-garde collector, orders cartoons to the likes of Picasso, Braque and Le Corbusier, who find in Aubusson tapestry a medium that fits their aspirations. This movement is carried on by cartoonist Pierre Baubouin, who transcribes in textile language the works of these artists.

Aubusson’s unwavering link with art of its time is nurtured by the Cité de la tapisserie through its actions for contemporary creations.
The process that led to the inscription of Aubusson tapestry on the Representative List of the Intangible Cultural Heritage of Humanity took place between 2008 and 2009. It was led by Bernard Bonnelle, the sub-prefect of Aubusson, in connection with the departmental museum curator. The authorities had the will to face the fragility of the sector and ensure the transmission of a craftsmanship that was in jeopardy.

The recognition of Aubusson tapestry’s craftsmanship relies on two essential lines:
- The presence of a professional community that remains complete after more than five centuries of existence. All necessary skills to produce an Aubusson tapestry can be found on the territory. The professional community includes two spinning companies out of the four remaining in France, dyers, three manufactures, eight workshops, cartoons painters, restorers, etc. All this with a strong particularity: in a small territory, the craftsmanship is enriched by the exchanges among the professionals who compare and test, accumulating a collective experience.
- The interpretation/adaptation work done by the weavers starting from the artist’s model. Producing a tapestry is a « four-hand process », arising from the exchanges between the creator, originator of an artistic intent, and the weaver, who holds the expertise.

For public authorities, the Cité internationale de la tapisserie with its various components (professional training, museum, contemporary creation, support of the tapestry sector) is an appropriate response to this UNESCO label. This label seems to be a very positive factor for the successful outcome of the project. Indeed, it drives strong ethics of working that give greater responsibility to the actors involved in order to build an unifying project.
THE WOOL
Tapestry is a matter of fibers, and above all of wool, praised for its isolating, supple and resistant qualities and its dyeing possibilities. After the shearing, the wool is sorted out according to its fineness, then washed and ungreased. The wool is then disentangled, combed and stretched in strands that, once spun by two or three, give a solid and regular thread.

THE DYEING
As opposed to industrial dyeing processes, dyers in Aubusson work using visual trichromatism, creating the desired nuance by adding small doses of primary colours pigments, without the assistance of any machine. In Aubusson, the dyer conducts a real research of nuances, produced in small quantities. This small production of very specific colours fits the needs of tapestry. The dyer's know-how, the mastering of pigments and bathing times, guarantees the consistence and durability of colours.

"THINKING WOOL": THE CARTOONIST
Cartoonists are the masters of the graphic and technical language of tapestry. They are in charge of translating and adapting the artist's model into a "textile speaking guide" on which the weaver can relate. Graphic codes indicate particular weaving techniques and the colours can be replaced by numbers. Each number relates to a colour in the assortment made by the dyer. Placed under the warp threads, the cartoon guides the weaver.

BASSE-LISSE WEAVING

The «lissier» is the weaver who executes the work on a loom. He gets his name from the «lisse», a string linking a warp thread to a pedal («marche») actioned to alternatively lift up and lower the two sets of warps, thus allowing to cover them with the weft threads using a wooden flute.

On a horizontal basse-lisse loom, the weaver works on the reverse side of the tapestry, and can only partially check his work by placing a mirror between the warp threads or crawling under the loom. The weaver himself, and the artist, only discover the entire work when they cut the warps and remove the tapestry from the loom. The work then has to be finished, with the sewing of the edges and of the weaving interruptions due to the shifts in colours.

This technique, closely associated to the know-how of Aubusson weavers, was inscribed on UNESCO’s list of Intangible Cultural Heritage in 2009.

THE ARTIST-WEAVER RELATIONSHIP,
A TRADITION IN AUBUSSON

The relationship between the artist, conceptor of the model, and the weaver who interprets it, is at the heart of the creation of a tapestry. Aubusson has always been a place of dialogue between an age-old technique and the foremost artistic avantgarde. The excellency of a tapestry resides in the quality of this relationship between the creator, who expresses his art in his own medium, and the weaver, who imagines its textile writing.

Tapestries are four-hand works bearing two signatures, the result of a collaboration between a craftsman and a creator (paintor, sculptor, designer, architect, etc.). The weaver’s know-how resides in his technique, but also in his sensibility and comprehension of the artist’s intention. The weaver makes different samples, trying different techniques, materials, colors, and proposes different interpretations to the artist. The manual weaving on a low-warps loom allows the weaver to use an infinite variety of colors and to constantly adapt his gesture. Aubusson tapestry’s technique can thus produce a great diversity of effects and textures in a single work. This unique relationship between the artist and the weaver attracted many of the main artists of the 20th century.

BUILDING THE CITÉ INTERNATIONALE DE LA TAPISSERIE

The National School of Decorative Art in Aubusson was one of the first three schools of Decorative Art, with Paris and Limoges, that opened in France by the end of the XIXth century. The building has been given a new skin to house the Cité internationale de la tapisserie.

The Cité internationale de la tapisserie opened in July 2016 in Aubusson (Creuse, France). It was a highlight of the cultural season: 40,000 visitors attended the exhibition of the Cité in six months while they were expected in a year.

The building of the former National School of Decorative Art in Aubusson has been entirely rehabilitated by Terreneuve architecture studio (Paris) with the main goal of making visitors understand the vitality of an age-old craftsmanship: Aubusson tapestry.

The heritage collections are presented in an immersive museum exhibit. More than just a museum, the Cité de la tapisserie is a place of artistic creation, training, and supporting the tapestry economic sector, which remains complete and preserved on the territory of Aubusson and South Creuse after six centuries of existence.

The rehabilitation of the National School of Decorative Art ended with the hand-over of the building in March 2016 by the Cité internationale de la tapisserie. The interior layout took about four months and the Cité de la tapisserie was inaugurated by the President of the Republic on July 10th 2016.

The restructuring project was carried out by Terreneuve architecture studio, unanimously selected by a jury at the end of an architectural competition launched in 2012. The Terreneuve team, led by Nelly Breton and Olivier Fraisse, was able to capitalise on the existing structure of the building, in particular by underpinning the building in order to create an exhibition area with monumental dimensions. Exhibition spaces treble regarding the former Tapestry Museum of Aubusson, whose management belongs to the Cité de la tapisserie since 2011.
The Cité Internationale de la Tapisserie was established in response to the inclusion of Aubusson tapestry skills on the UNESCO Intangible Cultural Heritage List in 2009. It is dedicated to the influence of this world-renowned monumental art. It is supported by a Joint union representing the departmental board of the Creuse, the region Nouvelle Aquitaine and the community of communes Creuse Grand Sud. It was conceived under the co-chair of Valérie Simonet, Chair of the Departmental Board of Creuse, and Jean-Jacques Lozach, Senator of Creuse and is now chaired by Valérie Simonet.

The Cité internationale de la tapisserie in Aubusson is an original institution, created with three objectives:

- to preserve, enhance and promote Aubusson tapestry, Intangible Cultural Heritage of Humanity according to the UNESCO, with a reference collection;
- to support a complete economic sector, highlight its know-hows, encourage transmission and contemporary creation;
- to develop tourism and textile economies in a fragile rural area.

After being inaugurated by the President of France, the Cité de la Tapisserie opened its doors to the public on 10 July 2016, in the completely restored building that previously housed the Aubusson École Nationale d’Art Décoratif (ENAD - National School of Decorative Art), marking a genuine continuity with Aubusson tapestry history.

AN UNPRECEDENTED EXHIBITION ROUTE

The scientific and cultural project of the new museum echoes the UNESCO label by keeping the human in the heart of the exhibition route. Discovery, initiation, representation and creation are the four steps of a route deployed over 1,600 m².

A VIBRANT SPACE, FOR THE DEVELOPMENT OF A "HYPER RURAL" TERRITORY

Beyond a traditional museum, the Cité internationale de la tapisserie imposes itself as a pioneer project for economic and cultural development on a rural territory with a great craftsmanship: the Cité hosts a series of professional functions related to its mission to support the tapestry industry.
AN UNPRECEDENTED EXHIBITION

Echoing the inscription of Aubusson tapestry craftsmanship on the Representative List of the Intangible Cultural Heritage of Humanity, the visitor’s itinerary puts the human dimension of tapestry back in the centre.

This 1,200 m² exhibition is supplemented by a platform for contemporary creation. Frédérique Paoletti and Catherine Rouland were in charge of the scenography layout. The scenography consists of three areas: discovery, initiation, representation, as the three steps of the visitor’s itinerary. Through very different layouts in each area of the exhibition, the scenographic bias is to create a free yet intimate atmosphere, punctuated by surprising elements, to create an immersion in the Aubusson world of weaving.

EXPLORING WOVEN MATERIAL: "TAPESTRIES OF THE WORLD"

This fist area is dedicated to the textile expressions from different areas of the world to highlight the universal dimension of this weaving technique. The artworks come from the collections of prestigious institutions in France (Quai Branly Museum, National Museum of Asian Arts, Musée de Cluny-National Museum of the Middle Ages in Paris; Museum of Fabrics-Museum of Decorative Art in Lyon, Bargoin Museum in Clermont-Ferrand...). This exhibition section works as counterpoint of UNESCO Intangible Cultural Heritage of Humanity label: Aubusson tapestry is included in a worldwide textile practice, employed by almost every people at some time in their history.
UNDERSTANDING THE CRAFTSMANSHIP:
THEHANDS OF AUBUSSON

This area dedicated to the craftsmanship of Aubusson tapestry intends to present UNESCO Intangible Cultural Heritage of Humanity label. In particular, it develops, the “four-handed work”: essential dialogue between the artist’s project and the technique, in an artist-craftsman approach of the adaptation process.

Tablets with iconographic documents and audiovisual materials present the complete range of technical know-how. The visitor can make his own tapestry on a tablet thanks to a serious game of weaving.

Objects and audio-visual documents explain the daily life of Aubusson tapestry’s professional community (from spinners to restorers) that has been kept complete for six centuries.

Every production is represented: wall tapestries, Aubusson rugs (made on a low-warp loom), knotted pile carpets (made on a high-warp loom), “Saracen” embroidery, needlepoint tapestry, mechanical weaving, etc.

SIX CENTURIES OF HISTORY: THE TAPESTRY NAVE

Designed as a real show, it is the flagship space of the exhibition. The Tapestry Nave is an invitation to travel through five centuries and a half of productions in Aubusson. The tapestries are not displayed as if they were paintings anymore. The scenography design evokes the original interior décor where the tapestries could be found, thanks to a set in “trompe l’œil” inspired from theatre techniques, for real immersion in the woven world of Aubusson. This chronological visitor’s itinerary, in an exhibition with fully modular display elements, is a clever way to take into consideration the monumental nature of tapestries and their close link to architecture. A lot of information is provided about the way the tapestries were made, echoing the previous section dedicated to the crafts. All along the Nave, tablets are available to zoom in on characteristic areas of some tapestries. This technical aspect is both thorough and pedagogical, in accordance with the inscription on the UNESCO Intangible Cultural Heritage of Humanity Representative List.

Artworks of their times, the tapestries on display in the Tapestry Nave show that for six centuries, contemporary art has always been woven in Aubusson.

Millefleurs à la licorne - 1480-1510

The Millefleurs à la licorne opens the Tapestry Nave. This tapestry is particular for Aubusson because it is the oldest tapestry made in the region as far as we know (1480). Moreover, it represents a very symbolical animal in tapestry: the unicorn.

The great "tenture" of Rinaldo & Armida -

A "tenture" (hanging) is a series of tapestries on the same theme or story. This detail is taken from one of the five pieces that are in the collections of the Cité internationale de la tapisserie to constitute the hanging of Rinaldo and Armida (17th century). The artist is still unknown.
Verdure fine aux armes du Comte de Brühl
around 1750

This tapestry with remarquable colours shows the spectacular recovery plan of the production in Aubusson after 1731.

The cartoon inspired by Jean-Baptiste Oudry (1686-1755) was created by Jean-Joseph Dumons (1687-1779) originally from Tulle in Corrèze, who was the first "Painter of the King" assigned to Aubusson. This tapestry was ordered by Heinrich Earl of Brühl (1700-1763), rich and powerful Prime Minister of August III, King of Poland, aesthete and art collector. His coat of arms are represented at the top of the tapestry. This piece was bought thanks to an exceptional help of the Fond du Patrimoine (Heritage Fund, French Ministry of Culture), and an operation of crowdfunding in partnership with the Heritage Foundation.

This tapestry made after a model of Charles Genuys (1895) belongs to the collections of the National School of Decorative Art of Aubusson. It was deposited to the Cité internationale de la tapisserie. This piece woven by the students of the School was presented at the Universal Exhibition in Paris in 1900. At the top of the tapestry can be seen the coat of arms of the first three National Schools of Decorative Art: Aubusson, Paris and Limoges. The set design evokes the School’s stand at International Exhibition of Decorative Art in Paris (1925).

Also on display, the productions of personalities who were pioneers of the Renovation of tapestry in the 20th century, like Édouard Degaine, Elie Maingonnat.
The section allocated to the 20th century in the Tapestry Nave presents the two artistic trends that coexisted in Aubusson at that time: the cartoon painters and the tapestries from artists (architects, painters, sculptors, etc.).

The cartoon painters

During the the 20th century, Jean Lurçat and his followers are called “cartoon-painters”: their creations are specifically meant to become tapestries. The full size artworks are designed to be woven with wool, observing all the technical constraints of the low-warp loom weaving.

Tapestries from artists

At the instigation of Jean Lurçat, renowned artists get interested in tapestry, mostly through great Parisian art galleries such as La Demeure (Denise Majorel gallery) or Denise René Gallery: Jean Arp, Alexander Calder, Georges Braque, Victor Vasarely, Fernand Léger, Le Corbusier, etc. These artists were painters, sculptors, architects: contrary to the cartoon painters, their mock-ups have to get in the hands of an adapter, a technical project manager for the future tapestry, like Pierre Baudouin in the National School of Decorative Art.

Visitors will also discover mini-tapestries. These pieces were made in the 1960’s by Pierre Baudouin, teacher in the School of Decorative Art. He was very impressed by the Coptic tapestry fragments he had the chance to see. It seemed to him that these fragments were a concentrate of high-quality weaving. This series of mini-tapestries were made with a great technical and aesthetic requirement, after models by artists like Jean Arp, Pablo Picasso or Georges Braque.
A PLACE FOR CONTEMPORARY CREATION

A PLACE TO INVENT AND SHOW CONTEMPORARY AUBUSSON TAPESTRIES

In the Museum itinerary, contemporary pieces just “fallen from the loom” are on display. These weavings are to join the Cité de la tapisserie’s collection. The artworks come from the annual calls for artistic projects launched in 2010, within the frame of the Regional Fund for the creation of contemporary tapestries.

The display is renewed following the loans to other Museums requesting these artworks for outer exhibitions, and following the realisation of new award-winning projects. Other contemporary weavings produced by the Cité internationale de la tapisserie can be displayed in the Cité. Special orders are made to outstanding contemporary artists. These pieces include Pieta for World War I, the French-German tapestry realised within the frame of the commemoration of the centenary of the First World War, from a picture by German artist Thomas Bayrle.

Award-winning artists in Aubusson since 2010

2010: Nicolas Buffe, Benjamin Hochart, Olivier Nottellet.
2011: Cécile Le Taler, Marc Bauer, Mathieu Mercier.
2013: Quentin Vaulot & Goliath Dyèvre, Leo Chiachio & Daniel Giannone, Diane de Bournauel, Jane Harris.
2014: Pascal Haudressy
2016: Eva Nielsen, Marie Sirgue
A PLACE FOR EXCHANGES AND REFLECTION

The Cité internationale de la tapisserie also hosts workshops. In partnership with the Hermès Foundation and the Conny-Maeva Foundation, the most recent session was on the theme "The tapestry, the wall, the architect". It included students from the National School of Architecture and Landscape of Bordeaux, the National School of Art of Limoges, students in design in Creuse, students from China Academy of Arts (Hangzhou) and students from the Arts and Crafts training for weavers of the Cité internationale de la tapisserie. It led to the design of innovative projects of contemporary tapestries, with a clear interest in one of the Cité’s innovation project: the outdoor tapestry.

A PLACE FOR ARTISTS’ RESIDENCY

The Cité internationale de la tapisserie receive artists in mini residency to make them understand the constraints of the textile language of a tapestry, for their future models. They work with a cartoon-maker and receive advice from experimented weavers. This is how the Cité works with important and international artists of the French contemporary scene like Clément Cogitore (Marcel Duchamp Prize 2018), Jean-Baptiste Bernardet, eL seed...

The calls for contemporary creation: how does it work?

As a first step, the artists are invited to propose an artistic intent, from which the jury designates the final candidates. These candidates are allowed to rework their project before presenting it to the jury composed equally of experts and elected representatives. The award-winning artworks are then produced following the skills and techniques of Aubusson tapestry, as recognized Intangible Cultural Heritage of Humanity by UNESCO. A public invitation to tender for the weaving is launched among the weavers’ workshops. This process reflects the question of the adaptation of the artistic project of the creator, by the craftsman and his know-how and expertise.

VOCATIONAL TRAINING FOR WEAVERS & THE CITÉ’S WORKSHOPS

VOCATIONAL WEAVERS TRAINING

The inscription of Aubusson tapestry on the Representative List of the Intangible Cultural Heritage of Humanity by UNESCO occurred at a time when this centuries-old craftsmanship was no longer passed on. To preserve it, the Cité de la tapisserie created a weaving training, in partnership with the GRETA of the Limousin Region (institution for adults training). The vocational training for weavers evolved into a National Arts and Crafts Degree in September 2016. This 2 years training takes place in the training centre of the Cité de la tapisserie.

A TRAINING ROOM FOR BUDDING WEAVERS

The Cité de la tapisserie includes a weaving training area. It is located in the former weaving workshop the students used in the National School of Decorative Art. The architects chose a clever technological solution to provide them with the necessary light to learn weaving: they used the existing metallic structure to create a lighting system that projects a daylight-like illumination at the ceiling, as a way to recreate the natural vertical light of the original workshop, meant for the weaving training (with no drop shadow).
THE CITÉ’S WORKSHOPS

The building of the Cité de la tapisserie also offers a business centre with workshops to accommodate innovative projects developers in the field of textile and woven arts.

Another workshop with an exceptionally large loom (8 metres long) allows any weaver to fulfil special orders: this is where the Tolkien tapestries are woven until 2021.

The Mobilier national tapestry restoration workshop

Heir to the "Garde-Meuble de la Couronne", the Mobilier national provides the furnishing of official palaces of the Republic and various presidential residences, Parliament, Ministries, embassies, etc. One of its two tapestry restoration workshops is installed in Aubusson since December 1992, in the building of the Cité de la tapisserie. Thanks to an agreement between the two institutions, this exceptional workshop will open its doors to the public, at least once a week (by appointment only). The restored pieces will be presented to the public during one to two weeks before being sent back to the institutions they belong to.

DOCUMENTATION, RESEARCH, INNOVATION

THE LIBRARY - RESOURCE CENTRE

The departmental centre of documentation on Aubusson tapestry was created in 1981 along with the Museum of Aubusson tapestry. The ressources centre within the Cité internationale de la tapisserie gathers the funds of the former centre of documentation of the museum and the library of the National School of Decorative Art, for around 16,000 books, plus print documents and artists files.

MAKING A CORPUS OF INTANGIBLE CULTURAL HERITAGE

To make the craftsmanship of Aubusson more visible, an inventory of the documentary ressources was led, especially with audiovisual documents. The documents have been digitalised and some are available online on the Cité’s website (media library).

COLLECTING FORMALIZING THE KNOW-HOW AND SKILLS OF THE CRAFTSMANSHIP

During almost six centuries, the transmission of the know-how of Aubusson tapestry was exclusively oral. After the UNESCO label, it was necessary to start the elaboration of a technical corpus and collect professionals testimonies through an ethnographical survey.

Publishing activities

Projects mixing research, design and innovation are launched, among them the outdoor tapestry Inter spinas floret. This project was born during a workshop in 2013 with the theme “Aubusson tapestry in the parks and gardens” for the creation of an outdoor tapestry. A first prototype has been woven with textured polyester fibres and was tested on the roof of the museum.

In 2016, the workshop “The tapestry, the wall and the architect” led to very imaginative projects, some following the work with outdoor tapestries. The colours ageing and resistance of the first prototype was not satisfying. Another test is starting.

This project is mixing heritage and innovation: the digitalisation in ultra high definition of the tapestry La Fée des Bois ("The Fairy Wood"), woven in 1909 by the Manufacture Croc-Jorrand, has been analysed for an identical reweaving, on demand of a collector. This is the first trial for a project of experimental reweavings. Digitisation has been made by Italian firm by Haltadefinizione.

The ultra high resolution images open an original exhibition area, as an introduction to the section “The Hands of Aubusson”. The visitor can immerse himself into the images of the weaving to the nearest pixel, to prepare his discovery of the technical aspects of tapestry.
SUPPORTING THE TAPESTRY INDUSTRY

CONNECTING AUBUSSON TAPESTRY AND CONTEMPORARY CREATION

Aubusson did not invent tapestry but in Aubusson tapestry workers always had the capacity for experimenting, making the craftsmanship evolve, looking for better production performance, in a mainly private sector. Aubusson production is characterised by a shorter time of production, savings in resources, speed in carrying out pieces. One square metre costs at least around 6,000 euros and requires 20 days to one month to be woven, according to its technical complexity.

The questions of productivity, efficiency, innovation, weaving techniques, were studied at the National School of Decorative Art in Aubusson. Today, it is the Cité de la tapisserie’s turn to try to enrich the craftsmanship: this heritage is alive, it keeps evolving and developing. That is why it needs to be confronted with contemporary creation. Bring tapestry medium to the attention of contemporary creators and prescribers is one of the missions of the Cité internationale de la tapisserie.

AN ECONOMIC VISION OF THE HERITAGE

An unknown reality is that the economic sector of tapestry is still alive. Today, it counts around 120 jobs. This professional community is still complete: all the crafts and skills required to make a tapestry are present within the territory. It includes two spinning companies out of the four remaining in France, dyers, three manufacturers, eight workshops, cartoons painters, restorers, etc.

All this with a particularity: in a small territory, the craftsmanship is enriched by the exchanges among the professionals who compare and test, accumulating a collective experience.
SUPPORTING YOUNG PROFESSIONALS

Between 2000 and 2012, the number of weaving workshops fell from 16 to 4 in the region of Aubusson. With the new training for weavers, 5 new workshops were created.

WELCOMING COLLECTORS

By receiving collectors, the Cité internationale de la tapisserie shows them the renewal of contemporary creation with Aubusson tapestry. The presentation of the artworks or the models can lead to re-weavings. For example, the 2D presentation of Le Bain ("The Bath"), a project by Félicia Fortuna and Christophe Marchalot, who earned special mention from the jury in 2012, was a real crush for a collector who had this model woven in 2015. The point is also to make them realise that re-weavings of exceptional ancient tapestries are possible: a first trial is ongoing with The Fairy Wood (1909) on request of a collector.

RELYING ON THE AUBUSSON UNIVERSE TO DEVELOP EW USES

The Cité’s research and innovation activities are meant to develop new uses for Aubusson tapestry. A survey is led to determine products and projects developers using tapestry.

DELEGATED DESIGN AND PRODUCTION TO SUPPORT THE ECONOMIC SECTOR

A project to delegate the production of a series of elements of furniture including elements of tapestry is ongoing in the form of a public-private partnership between the Cité internationale de la tapisserie and Ymer & Malta Studio (Paris). The prototypes will join the collections of the museum. The gallery commercialise the re-weavings of the prototypes (up to 7 copies), thus generating activity for Aubusson workshops.
THE "AUBUSSON WEAVES TOLKIEN" OPERATION

THE ORIGIN OF THE PROJECT

The Cité internationale de la tapisserie in Aubusson, France, has signed an agreement with the Tolkien Estate for creating an exclusive series of thirteen tapestries and one carpet to be woven at Aubusson over the course of four years. The creations will be based on the original illustrative works produced by J.R.R. Tolkien (1892-1973), who began painting and drawing as a child, and continued to do so all through his life.

Christopher Tolkien, the son of The Lord of the Rings' author J.R.R. Tolkien, has put a lot of work and effort throughout his life into honouring and promoting his father’s monumental work in all its richness, and as literary executor, he notably edited and published the Silmarillion manuscript.

In 2010, the Scientific and Cultural Project for the museum at the heart of the nascent Cité internationale de la tapisserie was drafted by the curator, and he came up with the idea for The Nave of Tapestries. The question arose of what it would be like to create a 20th century wall hanging based on a renowned literary work, as was the custom in the 16th or 17th century. J.R.R. Tolkien's stories seemed an obvious choice for this.

A young apprentice weaver, Thomas Mondon, began drafting a document listing all the different illustrators of Tolkien’s written works, including the author himself. In 2012, an interview with Christopher Tolkien in the French newspaper Le Monde provided the team from the Cité de la tapisserie with a breakthrough: the project should honour the memory and illustrative works of J.R.R. Tolkien himself.

At the end of 2012, the director of the Cité internationale de la tapisserie, Emmanuel Gérard, contacted Dominique Bourgeois, publisher of the French version of The Lord of the Rings (Christian Bourgeois publishing house) in France, and emphasised the relevance of weaving the illustrative works of J.R.R. Tolkien that accompanied his novels, in the Aubusson tapestry tradition. The sheer size of the work would invite visitors to immerse themselves in the fantasy world of J.R.R. Tolkien as never before. The publisher was taken with this idea, as was most of the Tolkien family subsequently.

At the end of 2013, Christopher and Baillie Tolkien received the Cité’s director, Emmanuel Gérard, and curator Bruno Ythier, at their house in Haute-Provence. They said that aside from an exhibition of Tolkien's original pictures by the Bodleian Library in Oxford, it was the first time that anyone had expressed a wish to showcase the illustrative work of their father and father-in-law. They asserted that in their eyes, the idea of using tapestry to present this illustrative work was perfect. 14 drawings and watercolours by J.R.R. Tolkien were jointly selected by the Tolkien family and the Cité de la tapisserie as subjects for tapestries or carpets. This then led to negotiations with the Tolkien Estate’s lawyer, Cathleen Blackburn. At the end of 2016, this resulted in an agreement signed by Christopher Tolkien for the Tolkien Estate, and French senator Jean-Jacques Lozach for the Cité internationale de la tapisserie.

TIMELINE

- End of 2016: agreement signed with the Tolkien Estate;
- 25 January 2017: official launch of the project and start of the digitisation process for the 14 original works at the Bodleian Library in Oxford;
- 2017: the weaving committee establishes the technical aspects (colour sampling, size of tapestries, selection of weaving thickness, etc.), work is carried out on the first tapestry cartoon (real-size painted paper-board model);
- Autumn 2017: weaving starts and progress can be followed at the Cité de la tapisserie;
- 2021: weavings come to an end, exhibition with the whole hanging in Aubusson.
This project came to light after much thought on the form a large tapestry wall-hanging with a literary narrative would take today. The name of J.R.R. Tolkien quickly came to the fore as author of one of the greatest literary sagas of the 20th century.

The project is structured around four series, each linked to different works by the author: Letters from Father Christmas (a collection of letters written and illustrated by J.R.R. Tolkien for his children between 1920 and 1942), The Hobbit, The Lord of the Rings, and finally, The Silmarillion (published posthumously in 1977 by J.R.R. Tolkien’s son, Christopher Tolkien), which traces the first Ages of Middle-earth – the setting for his novels. 13 mural tapestries will be created. The fourteenth piece, the Numenorean Carpet, is a woven floor-covering of about 130 square metres. This will take months of meticulous work in the French tapestry-crafting manufactures and workshops of Aubusson and the Creuse that specialise in the very same Aubusson tapestry techniques recognised by UNESCO, and added to the lists of Intangible Cultural Heritage of Humanity in 2009.

Such a large project showcasing this major aspect of the author’s work has never been seen before. Using Aubusson tapestry craftsmanship to weave this series of 14 pieces based on the illustrative works of J.R.R. Tolkien is very innovative in the world of tapestry today. It creates a link to the great narrative wall-hangings (series of tapestries illustrating the different parts of a story) of the 17th and 18th centuries that made reference to important literary texts (Homer’s Odyssey, or Renaud and Armide taken from Torquato Tasso’s Jerusalem Delivered, etc.). This direct link to literature was lost in the 19th and 20th centuries. Today, in the 21st century, this project of weaving the illustrative works of J.R.R. Tolkien has an added originality: it benefits from illustrations created by the author of the literary works himself, which is a first in the history of great narrative wall hangings.

Every due respect will be given to the original works as the Cité de la tapisserie embarks on this heritage-based adventure of combining Aubusson tapestry, a major decorative art, with the illustrative works of J.R.R. Tolkien that are so suited to becoming history-in-the-making tapestries, embedded as they are in a ‘present-day mythology’. The sheer monumentality of this woven wall-hanging project will invite viewers to immerse themselves in the fantasy world of J.R.R. Tolkien as never before. In the wake of Charles Le Brun’s L’Histoire d’Alexandre (The History of Alexander) or Isaac Moillon’s L’Odyssée d’Ulysse ("Ulysses’ Odyssey"), it is now the illustrative and narrative universe of J.R.R. Tolkien that will live on through the ages alongside his books.

A GROUND-BREAKING ADAPTATION

The starting point for this Tolkien wall hanging is a collection of original watercolours and drawings made by the famous author, kept at the Bodleian Library in Oxford and most of which do not measure more than 20 cm on any edge. It takes every bit of Aubusson expertise to successfully transpose these small formats into a woven work of several metres square, while honouring the original works. Our pledge: to create a wall-hanging in the spirit of the time when the illustrations were created.

The first stage consists of establishing the final formats of each tapestry, their technical blueprints and the range of wool colours used, with the aim of creating a harmonious wall-hanging while also honouring the original works. The next stage is creating the ‘tapestry cartoons’ (painted and annotated models) scaled to the real size of the future tapestries and that serve as a guide to the hand weavers during weaving.

Bruno Ythier, curator of the Cité internationale de la tapisserie, gives an overview of this transposing technique: “It is Aubusson know-how that dates back to more than five hundred years ago. It is the work of the cartoon painter, who transposes the work. And it is not just a case of enlarging the work as the weavers point out with this anecdote: ‘You start with a tiny rose on the picture, and if you thoughtlessly enlarge it, you end up with a cabbage.’ The enlarged illustration needs to be reworked bit by bit to restore the spirit of the original. A whole range of technical parameters need to be taken into account, especially the properties of the wool itself. Wool absorbs light, which implies that colours must be as saturated as possible when the wool is dyed to obtain colours that are as vibrant in the woven fabric as in the original works.”

Once each illustration has been digitalised in high resolution, and with a view to creating enlarged versions, a weaving committee comprising cartoon painter Delphine Mangeret, who is in charge of transposing all the works onto the cartoons, the curator of the Cité de la tapisserie and the retired hand weaver, René Duché, was created in Spring 2017 to think about all the production constraints imposed on the weavers who will be chosen to work on the project. The weaving workshops are selected tapestry after tapestry, after submitting samples of work.

The first cartoon to weave Bilbo comes to the Huts of the Raft-Elves illustration set the tone for entire wall hanging. This piece was chosen as the graphic standard for the wall hanging as a whole because of its very tapestry-like nature and its similarities with works created within the National School of Decorative Art in Aubusson in the 1930s. The weaving committee was inspired to opt for a return to past traditions promoted by the School at that time through bold colours and a very specific technical draft influenced by 15th and 16th century tapestry work, and rarely in use today.

This first tapestry was revealed on April 6th 2018, in attendance of Baillie Tolkien: "The fact that this venerable French craft tradition has been used to make this creation inspired by Tolkien's work, that's something that really moves me. [...] I am absolutely sure that he [JRR Tolkien] would have been delighted by the tapestry and by the fact that human hands worked stitch by stitch to reproduce his work."

2 more tapestries were finished on October 5th 2018, this time in attendance of Baillie and her son Adam Tolkien, Halls of Manwë - Taniquetil and Glómund sets forth to seek Tûrin, and were just as successful as the first one: "Theirs is a work of length, of patience, and to now see these artworks that I originally saw, which are mostly in watercolours, in an A4 format, on this scale, well, It pays them tribute, it transforms them." (Adam Tolkien).

The weavings keep going on in the Cité’s workshop where an eight-metre-long loom is made available to weavers for these exceptional orders: the next one will be the first “Letter from Father Christmas”: Christmas 1926. It will be revealed on December 21st 2018.

The Tolkien hanging has been made possible thanks to the support of the Fondation d’entreprise AG2R LA MONDIALE pour la vitalité artistique.

The Cité internationale de la tapisserie à Aubusson associates with the Toms Pauli Foundation in Lausanne to propose an international exhibition dedicated to the "art quake" provoked by Lausanne Biennials in textile creation and tapestry in the 1960s. The exhibition will be held in the Jean-Lurçat Cultural Centre of Aubusson – former museum of Aubusson tapestry – which was designed for monumental tapestry.

In seven years from 1962 to 1969, the world of tapestry experienced a radical transformation. Accepted concepts, principles, rules, practices and techniques were seriously challenged by events at the Lausanne Tapestry Biennials.

THE SEISMOGRAPH BECOMES THE EARTHQUAKE

The founding fathers, Pierre Pauli and Jean Lurçat, had envisioned the Biennials functioning as a kind of seismograph, but in reality they became the epicentre of an earthquake that seemingly destroyed traditional wall tapestry, and laid the ground for a new, three-dimensional approach, which later expanded into Fiber Art. The first four Lausanne Biennials (1962, 1965, 1967 and 1969) were stormy. They witnessed tensions that degenerated into conflict between advocates of old and new, and brought to the surface formidable challenges and revolutionary innovations.

By 1962, the year of the first Biennial, the tapestry revival, largely initiated by Lurçat in France, had shaken off the restrictive image of tapestry as woven imitations of paintings and revived a weaving method that had been dormant since the 17th-century, a technique developed by the Ecole Nationale d’Art Décoratif, in Aubusson, in the 1920s, and put on public display in 1946, at the Paris exhibition French Tapestry from the Middle Ages to our Day. Jean Lurçat had launched the tapestry revival on the world stage by organising numerous exhibitions and conferences on all four continents. In that same spirit, along with Pierre and Alice Pauli, he had envisaged an international exhibition which would take place in Lausanne every two years and showcase the latest developments in wall tapestry.

FEMALE ARTISTS MAKE A DIFFERENCE

What Lurçat had not envisaged was that the tapestry-making principles he had so strongly advocated would be completely overturned. The challenge came from young artists, mainly from Switzerland and central and eastern Europe. From the very first 1962 edition, they brought a fundamental change by breaking with the principle of the painter/weaver duo (the designer working with the craftsman). Moreover, in a world hitherto dominated by men tapestry-makers, this shift opened doors for young women artists, who took on both the roles. By the 1965 Biennial, most artists were women, and it has stayed that way to the present.
1965 edition blew up the technique-based approach. Entries were no longer limited to tapestry but broadened to include all woven and embroidered works — a highly contentious issue between the French and the Swiss organisers and a major disappointment for Lurçat, who passed away the following year. As the makers of wall tapestries explored new textures, contemporary artists were increasingly investigating the three-dimensional possibilities of the medium. The 1969 Biennial approved these innovative approaches and accepted numerous pieces that had moved off the wall to textile sculptures. The exhibition was shown that same year in Paris, in the Manufacture des Gobelins, giving the French public the opportunity to familiarise themselves with these new forms of textile art. By the 1970s, the different currents were able to co-exist, exploring their own individual paths which often crossed, but rarely merged.

ARTWORKS

About 30 artworks will be on display in the 4 rooms of the Jean-Lurçat Centre in Aubusson. French wall tapestries will include mature works by Lurçat and his friends, also cartoon painters, such as Prassinos, Pi-cart-le-Doux, Jullien, and Tourlière, and some tapestries based on paintings by great artists such as Picasso, Matisse, Delaunay, Estève, and Vieira Da Silva. Other tapestries will illustrate European and American productions, including Somville, Rousseau-Vermette, Yoors, and Scholten. Certain Polish artists that caused a stir and generated much commentary such as Abakanowicz, Owidzka, and Sadley will also be on view. New techniques and embroidered works will be represented by Funk and Chevaley. Three-dimensional works showcased will include emblematic pieces by Giauque, Jobin, Abakanowicz, Daquin, and Lindgren.

LENDERS

The Cité internationale de la tapisserie and the Toms Pauli Foundation will present several pieces from their collections. Pieces from the collections of the "Mobilier national (Gobelins)" in Paris and the Central Museum of Textiles in Lodz were also requested. Contacts are ongoing with museums, foundations and companies in Japan; United States, Canada, Switzerland, Netherlands and United Kingdom.

A YOUNG, DEVELOPING COLLECTION

The departmental museum of tapestry in Aubusson was created in 1981. Its collection, now managed by the Cité de la tapisserie, is still young, like the museum's history. With its label "Musée de France", it belongs to the Departmental Council of Creuse.

THE PROGRESSIVE DEVELOPMENT OF A REFERENCE COLLECTION

The Cité de la tapisserie reasserts the original intention of building a reference collection offering a complete view of the production of tapestries in Aubusson from the 15th century to nowadays.

THE COLLECTIONS : A FEW FIGURES

- 440 Tapestries and carpets, including 330 wall tapestries
- 50 Pieces of woven furniture
- 16,000 Graphic artworks from the collections of the museum and the National School of Decorative Art, and among them about 4,500 models and drawings
- 20 Tools and weaving equipment
- 5,000 Woven pieces, deposits of the National School of Decorative Art. Mainly samples, a few tapestries of medium size, made by trainees. These pieces draw the history of the institution since it was created in 1884, and show the evolution in weaving training
- 600 Pieces of Saracen embroidery, made by the students of the School for girls in the National School of Decorative Art between 1880 and 1918
